Message from the ACSEAC 2012 General and Local Chairs

It is our great pleasure to welcome you to the second African Conference on Software Engineering and Applied Computing, which took place in Gaborone, Botswana, on 24–25 September 2012.

ACSEAC is held annually and is the world premier technical event covering all aspects of software engineering and applied computing. This will be held every year across the continent as we strive to reach out to the rest of the research community and also strive to strengthen partnerships and collaborative initiatives. Last year we were in Cape Town, South Africa, and next year we will be in Nairobi, Kenya.

In total, 17 papers were presented to around 40 attendees from over 15 countries. All of the submissions were rigorously reviewed by at least three international experts who were mostly members of the program committee. The Best Paper Award, which was sponsored by IEEE Software, went to Brett Ausmeier, Thomas Campbell, and Sonia Berman for their outstanding work, “Indoor Navigation Using a Mobile Phone.”

Great thanks to our sponsors who enabled us to reach this far. Our hope is that we can continue with this partnership for the forthcoming conference series.

The Organizing and Program Committees worked hard to produce a first-class technical conference and a pleasing and enjoyable social event.

On behalf of the Organizing and Program Committees, we welcome you all to Botswana and hope that you enjoyed the scenery in Botswana. We really had an exciting two-day conference full of sharing technical ideas and visions with colleagues from around the world.

We thank you for attending the conference and for being a part of this very important event.

Welcome to Gaborone.
